Part 3

You are going to read an extract from a short story.

Answer the questions that follow. For questions 19 to 26, choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D) and write your answer in the answer sheet.

Online shopping is great to find that one item you have been looking for forever. But you can be let down by mismatching product descriptions and images. This year, I had a very specific product in mind for my friend's birthday gift. She had been talking about this product for a year and I wanted to amaze her by getting the exact thing she wanted.

I had a photo of the model that he wanted, but I didn't know which store would have it. So, two weeks before her birthday, I went online to find it rather than wasting a lot of time walking from store to store without guarantee of finding it.

After some time searching, I found something similar to what I had been looking for. The problem was that there was a labeling mismatch: the product image was different to the product description, and the headline description also did not match. But I took the gamble and ordered it.

Unfortunately, the problems continued after I placed the order. I did not receive any shipping order updates, so I didn't know if it would arrive in two days or two weeks. It was incredibly frustrating, not least because it was a birthday gift and I didn't know if it was going to be delivered on time! There was a tracking number, but it linked out.

I was completely let down by the whole experience. Statistics show that consumers choose websites with enhanced delivery options, and lose trust in the retailer when delivery expectations are not met.

When the item arrived, it was different to what I had expected. The label on the packaging was different to the title on the product page. This made me incredibly frustrated as a customer. At the same time, I had no time to go to shops as I had to complete my science project with the other classmates at school. I was very worried as I might not have the chance to find the similar product before her birthday.

What were my options? Should I email and get a refund, and explain to my friend why I do not have a birthday gift for her this year, or do I accept what has happened and give the item to her even though it is not what she wanted? Well, after thinking for a while I decided to choose the first option.

The first point to consider is the cost of the games. 27_____ And the reason for this is

That online games stores have to compete for your money so they will offer lower prices. Meanwhile, the console game universe is a closed platform. In addition, a game publisher often gives a big discount to older games while some give them away in order to create interest in newer versions of the games.

Having said that, there is a wider range of games available on a computer than on a console. Besides the large number, some games are exclusive to computers. For example, 'League of Legends' and 'World of Warcraft' are games you will never be able to play on a console. 28 _____

Another factor in favour of computer gaming is its hardware. 29 _____ This translates to better graphics settings and smoother play than a console. But a gaming computer hardware doesn't come cheap! For example, a gaming computer that offers the same quality as a console game, costs double,

Seasoned gamers I have spoken to say that playing using a keyboard and a mouse increases the speed, control and accuracy. 30 _____

Playing computer games is cost effective too. In order to play a multi-player game on a console, you have to play a yearly membership fee. The fee may be low but in the long run, you will be spending a lot of money. 31 _____

On the other hand, it is easy to use a console and you can sit comfortably on a sofa to do it. 32 _____ In addition, it is also set up for multi-player games so you can easily play with your friends. I hope these points will help ease your decision process.

Yours sincerely
