Part 3

You are going to read an extract from an article. For questions 19 - 26, choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D) and mark the correct letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet.

Nothing stays the same for long. Things and people change, often for the worse, it seems, but once in a while, very much for the better. I grew up on a small farm, living a life that I took for granted. I had a dog without a leash and mountains in whichever direction I looked, and I awoke to the call of pheasants in the alfalfa fields. My father worked in the city as a welder. He was quiet; distant, you might say. He was not highly educated, but he was smart, with an engineer's way of looking at problems. He was a man made of leather, brass, and chewing tobacco who tried to teach my brother and me useful things, including respect. He also had a temper. I did not like him very much. One day I came home from school and his car was already there. Once inside, I was told by my mother that he didn't feel well. His back hurt. My father never missed work; in fact, when he came home, he went to the barn to work even more. I remember peeking around the corner at him as he lay on his bed in the middle of the day. I was in elementary school. Multiple myeloma, I learned, is a type of blood cancer. It starts in the cells that normally make antibodies for the body to use in its immune response against infections. When those cells become malignant, they make abnormal antibodies like crazy, crowding out the useful ones. As the cancer grows, the person who has it shrinks. The disease saps the body's energy, and the abnormal antibodies cause problems for other cells and tissues. Bones eventually look like Swiss cheese, and when they break, they may never heal. For the last year of my father's life, his entire day consisted of rising from his hospital bed in the living room and walking to his chair to sit and think. He was predictably in that chair when I came home one day during the ninth grade	I do not remember where my mother and brother were, but the two of us were alone. He asked me to sit down. What followed still moves me these decades later. He told me about his life, his family growing up, what it was like in the Pacific during World War II, his loves, his heartbreaks. It was as if a pipe had burst, his inner self rushing out to me in a great flood. He had been speaking for maybe an hour or more when I realized that he was doing more than telling. He was asking to be forgiven. All it took was understanding that that was what he needed, and I forgave everything, immediately. When he died, I didn't return to school for a few days. My biggest dread going back was gym class. It was poorly supervised, and bullies ran the show. True to form, on my first day, I was standing there in my shorts when an all-too-familiar voice bellowed, "Lensch!" It was a guy who had given many of us a few lumps over the years. I turned to face him and said, "What do you want?" The other boys didn't say a word as they waited for the beatdown. "I heard your dad died," he said. "Is that true?" I quietly replied, "Yes." He didn't punch me. He didn't even move. Instead, he said, "I'm sorry." I was shocked. I'm sure I cried. Those two words are how I have remembered that kid ever since. What do you do when your "enemies" reveal that they are also human? I think you either forgive and move forward or hold on to resentment and live in the past. I'm certainly not glad that my father got sick, but at the same time, I realize that if he hadn't, I might never have come to love him. He told me about his family, World War II, his loves, his heartbreaks. It was as if a pipe had burst.

 - D He wants to befriend with the bullies.

Part 4

Questions 27 to 32

You are going to read a newspaper article about juvenile delinquencies. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A to H the one which fits each gap (27-32). There are two extra sentences which you do not need to use.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Juvenile Delinquencies

The number of arrests of juvenile delinquents varies from around 2500 to 500 each year.

What is troubling is that there is a growing uptick in juvenile delinquencies. 27 .Bus stations and train stations are not spared. 28 .The next severe crime includes gang warfare, intimidation and petty robbery, followed by unethical conduct.

What are the potential causes of juvenile delinquency? 29 Almost all cases include students whose parents are busy working or who do not track the behaviour of their children. In short, they're not spending enough time with their children. Of course, they don't know what their young people are up to when they leave home. Some parents are too lenient with their children. 30. . Often they don't know where their children go in the evening, when they should be at home completing or revising their schoolwork. There is no reason for parents if their children are captured by the police in a surprise raid on video arcades or shopping complexes.

If parents do not verify the movements of their children, they will invariably find themselves ending up in a bad company. 31. By then, it could be a gargantuan challenge for parents to discipline them. Both the schools and the police can find it difficult to deal with these spoiled juveniles.

So how are we going to better manage juvenile delinquency? 32. . Parents must spend more time with their children, particularly when they are young. They should demonstrate concern for their schoolwork and family outings on weekends. Once they're disciplined at home, they're not likely to enter a bad company or have problems at school.

A	Because of bad influence, they can participate in drug-taking, or engage in fights between rival groups, or even robbery	E	In reality, vandalism is widespread among juveniles.
B	Of course, the root cause is the house.	F	I have a deep feeling that we're expected to nip the issue in the bud, that is, starting from home.
C	Is this a symptom of a deterioration in social and moral standards in our society?	G	Much of the cases involved are vandalism of public buildings and services.
D	They're also spoiled by giving them too much pocket allowance.	H	I assume that juvenile delinquency can be curbed if both parties take concerted action to monitor it from being a societal disease.

Part 5

We interviewed six teenagers about what kind of holiday do they prefer. Read the texts below and answer the questions that follow.

People who want to go on holiday

A - MAGGIE, 22 years old

I would like a holiday with other people in their twenties. I want to go diving during the day, go out dancing and to different restaurants every evening. I only have a week free during December.

B - ALEXIA, 24 years old

Alexia is interested in mountain climbing. I want to sleep in tents and make my own food. I am able to spend four or five weeks on this holiday. I was a Girl Guide during my school days.

C - JOHAN, 25 years old

I live in the countryside. I hope to spend a few months in a big city, ideally in the home of somebody who can tell me about life in the city. I don't mind paying a little and help the owner to do house chores.

D - LEONG, 20 years old

I want to spend two or three weeks walking in the suburban areas. I like to stay somewhere new each night, but do not want to carry many heavy luggage. Travelling light will enable me to go many places over a short period of time.

E - KIM BENG, 18 years old

I prefer to go on holidays with my parents. I am able to take 2 weeks of college break and visit a place which is outside my country. I would like to explore different towns in the new country, but my parents would prefer to travel on a cruise and relax on board.

F - SUSAN, 26 years old

Basically, wherever I go, I will definitely look for places with good food. Among the food paradises in Asia are located in Thailand and Malaysia. I have tried Penang Char Koay Teow, Selangor Famous Satay and Johor Curry Chicken. My next stop will be the former, "The Land of Smiles".
